LIVE MUSIC LIVES AT THE HYDEY

The AHA has congratulated Hyde Park Hotel and ALH management today on its decision to continue with its live music program, but has warned that many other hotels face challenges due to sound restrictions and red tape.

Australian Hotels Association (WA) CEO Bradley Woods said the Hyde Park Hotel was an iconic hotel and news of the end of live music performances, generated a swell of community support.

“Support from government and local community groups has meant the Hydey can continue with its proud tradition of bringing the best local and national music to the people of Western Australia,

“It is a win win outcome, and shows the Hyde Park Management have a strong connection with their community and commitment to local music.

Mr. Woods said he would like to see support for all other hotels that provide a vibrant and diverse mix of entertainment for their patrons.
